International Interreligious Affairs

Feb.25th - Rome

The Pontifical Council for the Holy See's charitable works, Cor Unum, held a special conference in the Synod of Bishops hall in the Vatican on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the promulgation of the encyclical Deus Caritas Est by Pope Benedict XVI. For the first time non-Christian perspectives were included in a Vatican conference on a Papal encyclical.

I was honored to be invited to be the Jewish contributor on the subject of "the Jewish perspective on Biblical Love" and the Muslim presentation was given by Professor Saeed Ahmed Khan, of Wayne State University, Detroit, U.S.A.

April 4-7 - Warsaw

The biennial meeting of the International Jewish-Catholic Liaison Committee (constituted by the Holy See's Commission for Religious Relations with the Jewish people and the International Jewish Committee for Interreligious Consultations) was held in Warsaw, April 4-7.

AJC is a founding member of the ILC and IJCIC and was represented at this meeting by Rabbi Noam Marans, Lisa Palmieri Billig and myself .

The deliberations focused primarily on religious perspectives on the current refugee crisis.

During the course of the meeting the Catholic and Jewish participants visited Treblinka where I was honored to address the gathering and lead memorial prayers.

April 10-12 - Vienna

The first meeting of the Advisory Forum of KAICIID was convened in Vienna at the Dialogue Center. KAICIID is the world's only intergovernmental organization governed by a multi-religious Board of Directors. The Advisory Forum's establishment expands and deepens the geographic, religious and cultural inclusivity of KAICIID's work to promote social cohesion through interreligious dialogue.

On the morning of the 11th an interactive interreligious meeting took place that gathered interreligious dialogue practitioners from around the world, as well as diplomats and stakeholders from intergovernmental organizations, policy-makers, civil society and the media in Vienna to discuss KAICIID's work and mandate.
